CL-150 COHORTS

*Do you want to sustain your language proficiency?
Here's how to enroll in your Cohort.*

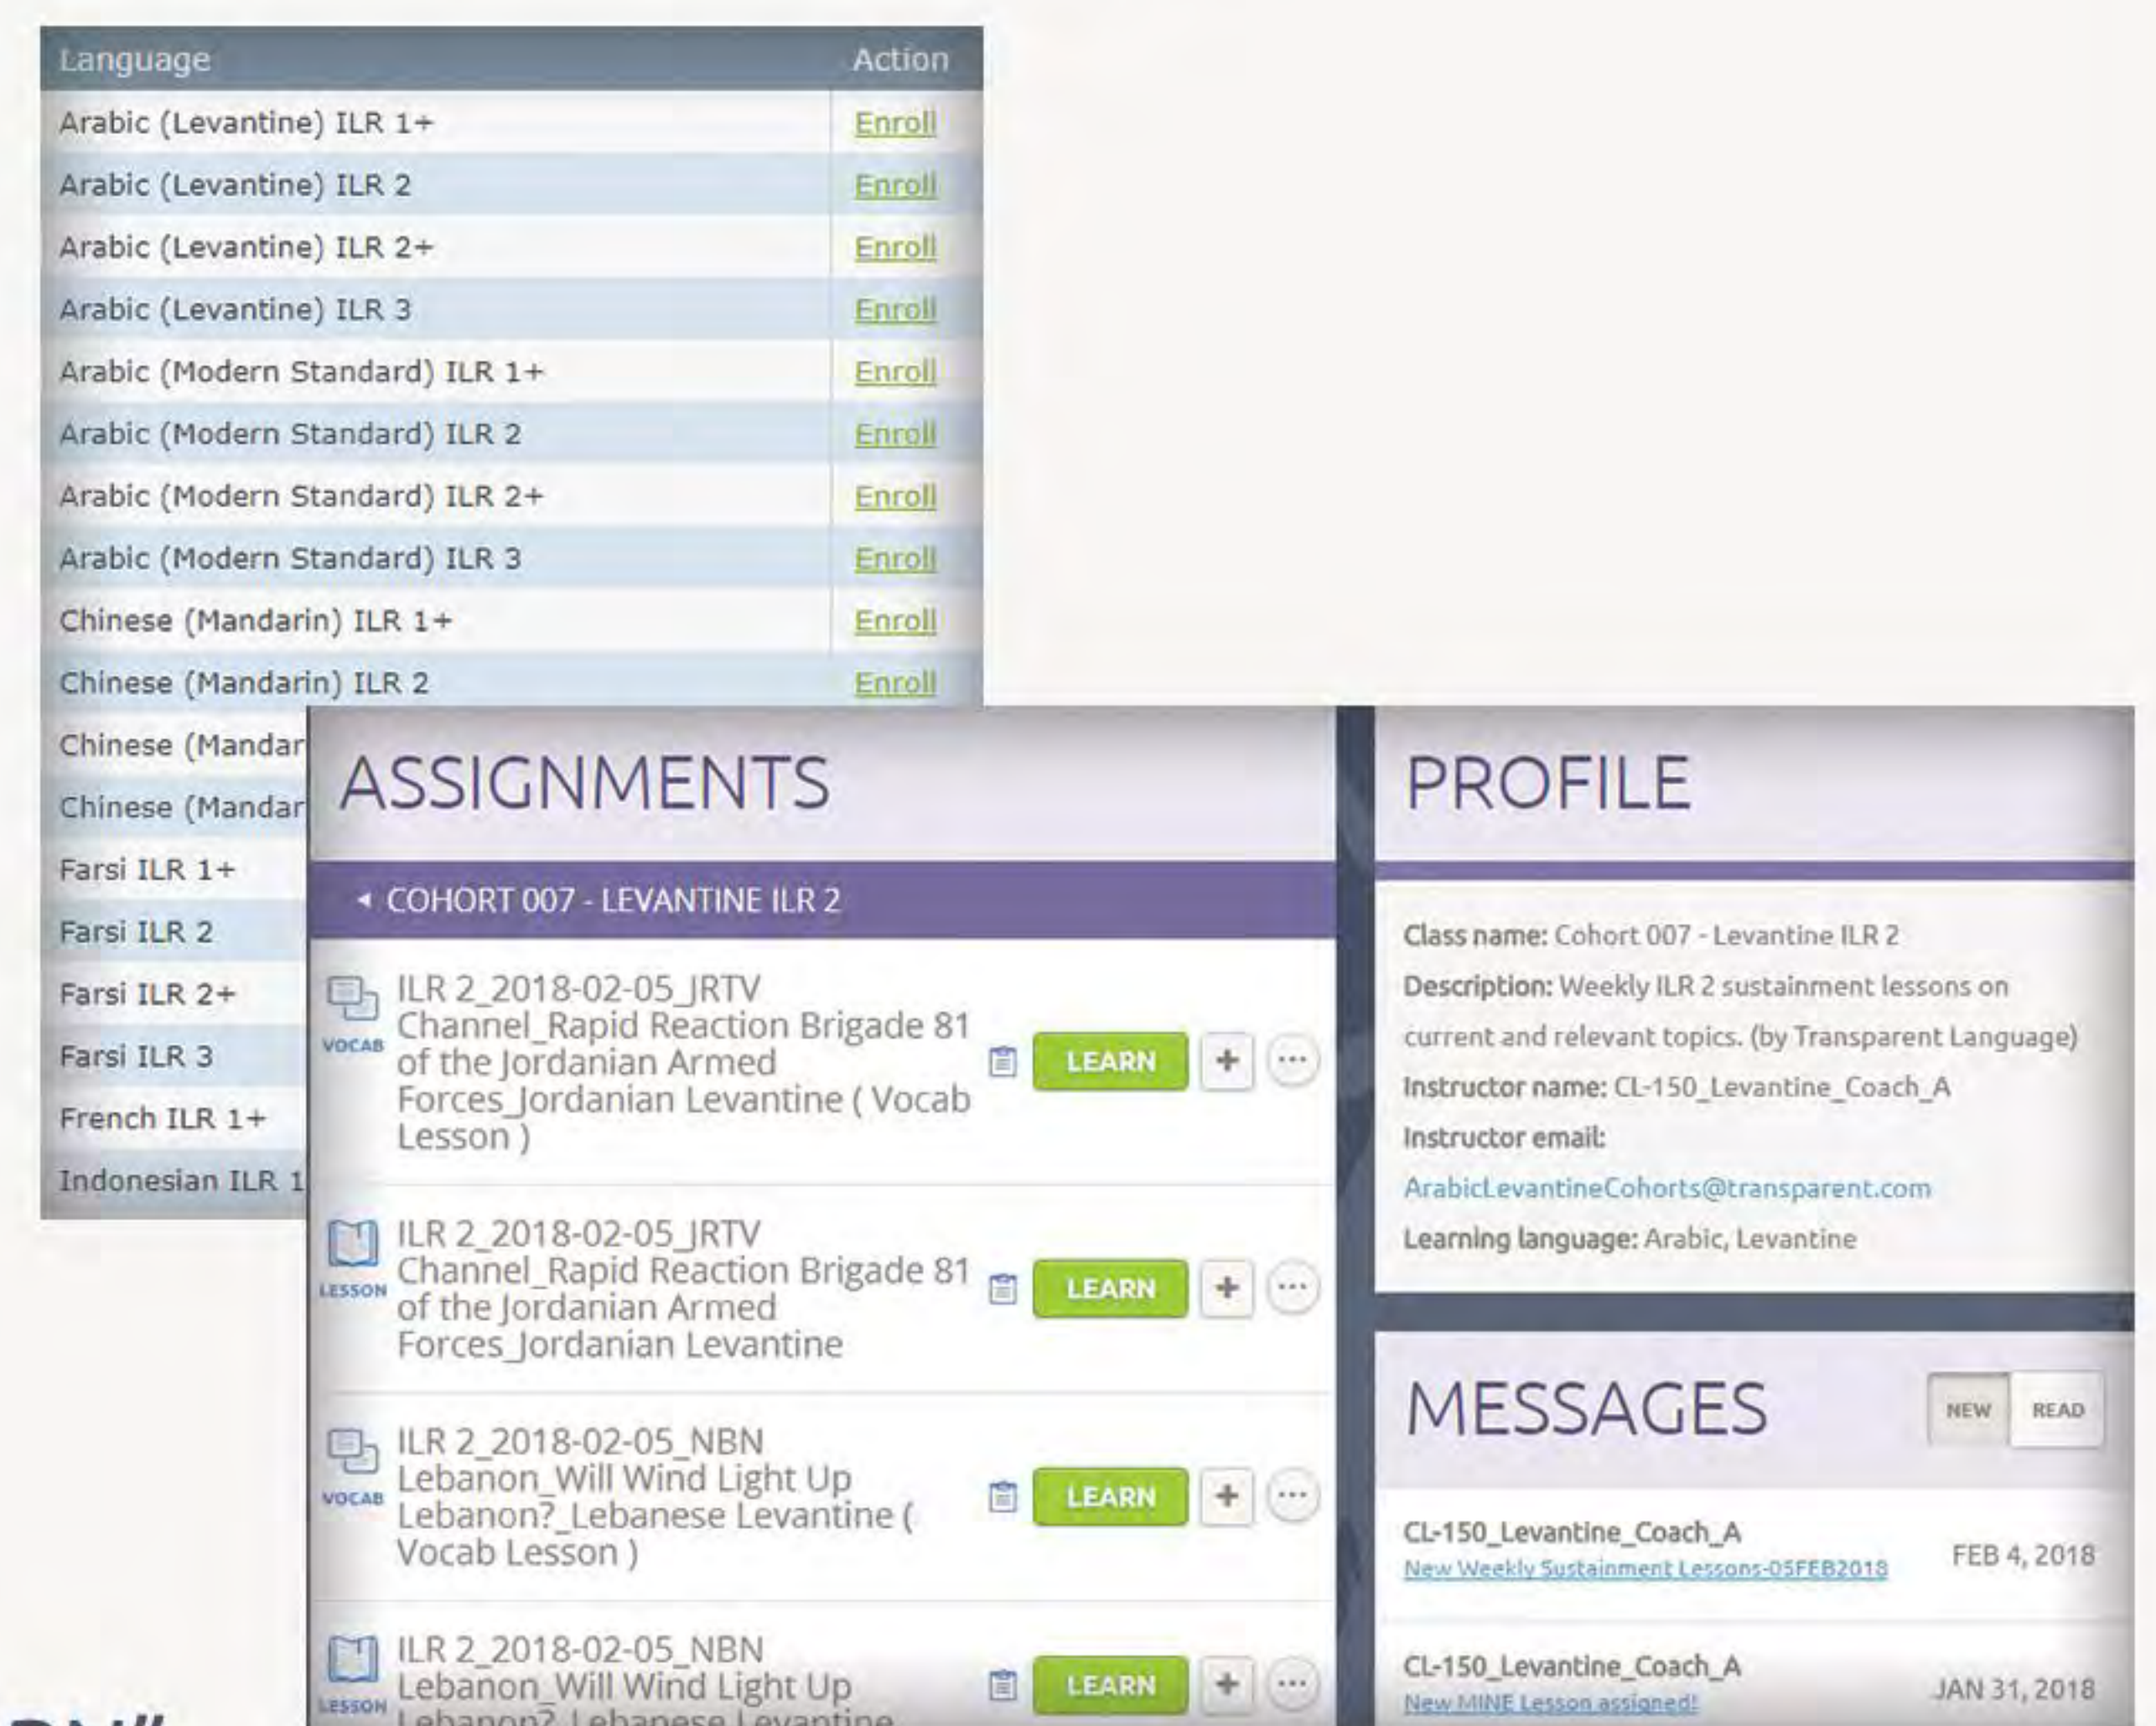

What is a CL-150 Cohort?

CL-150 Cohorts are designed to prevent language proficiency drop-off by providing language sustainment lessons for globally dispersed language professionals. Each week, the CL-150 Cohort Team publishes one or more multi-activity language lessons —“sustainment workouts”—across all four modalities at designated ILR levels from 1+ to 3. These lessons are based on authentic content, usually published in the last few weeks or days, and cover professionally relevant topics such as culture, economy, geography, military, politics, science, security, society or technology. Cohort lessons can be completed anytime, anywhere, on almost any computer or mobile device.

Enrolling in a CL-150 Cohort

STEP 1: On the CL-150 home page, select “COHORTS”.

STEP 2: Select the appropriate Cohort language and proficiency level and click “Enroll.”

You will be enrolled and brought to the Assignments screen to see all the current sustainment workouts for your Cohort. You can also review your assignments and messages.

Note: To find your Cohorts in the future after enrolling, select “LEARN” on the CL-150 home page, then click the “CLASSES & COHORTS” tab.
